The Greedy LION

Mary M. Aiyeleso Ph.D

Lion went to a man who gave him evil (bad) powers. He got power to be killing all animals that can count heaps of sand from "one to ten.

He went to his house and gathered ten heaps of sand in front of his house.

He saw a goat and said,
"Goat please! count these heaps of sand for me".

Goat said, "one, two,
three, four, five, six,
seven, eight, nine, ten."
At the count of the ten he fell down and died.

The lion was happy. He took the dead goat to his house. He cooked and ate him for many days.

The lion was hungry again.
He went out and saw a cow
and said "Cow please! count
these heaps of sand for me.
"The cow said "one, two,
three, four, five, six, seven,
eight, nine, ten., And he fell down and died.

Lion was very happy.
He took the dead cow.
He cooked and ate him
for many days.

It was only tortoise and a few birds that were left after the lion had eaten all the animals in the forest.

One day, lion called tortoise and said, tortoise, my good friend. Have you counted my heaps of sand? "Yes" tortoise answered. Lion begged him to count the heaps of sand again.

Then, tortoise said, "No problem, I will count them again." He said. "one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine and one,"

Then, the greedy lion angrily said, "You are a fool! Fooool!!! Count the heaps of sand like this... "one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten."

He has forgotten that he too is an animal and must not count up to "ten."
Immediately he fell down
and died.
